

That Plant Fucker

December 2019

The Yule Tree

The beacon in the forest wintry Dancing lights to branches within Tender treats feeding fairie fae
Star of light portends the return of the sun

I am drawn to you, magnificent tree
I seek you in the depths of the forest
A primordial call
To eons past, to wilder generations

I have found you I'm going to use this chainsaw to cut you down
Put your dead carcass in my home
Watch you die slowly While we sing songs of your beauty

Witch Hazel

Evergreens get the ink in winter. You can always find them at the Solstice bacchanals.

But there are a few of us that serenely flower in the winter.

I'll give you scraggly yellow flowers in bleak midwinter and medicine for your skin.

Merry X-Mas, Bitches!

Witch Hazel Scalp Tonic

Ingredients:

4 fluid ounces witch hazel 12 drops rosemary essential oil 12 drops peppermint essential oil 12 drops lavender essential
oil
12 drops tea tree oil

Instructions:

In a 4 oz. or larger spray bottle, combine the witch hazel and essential oils. Shake well. Apply and massage into scalp as needed up to once a day after shampooing, let sit for a minute or two, then rinse.

Rant

This Christmas, get everyone on your list some herbal products.

Most adults love a good salve. Like in that classic Christmas carol All I want for Christmas is Ointment.

And for the kiddos, bouquets of lush and thorny rose canes. Teach them early and often that nature bites back.

And for those teachers' gifts, try valerian tincture in 80 proof brandy. Trust me, they love it. It's ok, it's medicine!

Nature provides all we need, including the bric-a-brac for your holiday gift-giving obligations.

Shameless plugs

Subscribe to That Plant Fucker:
<http://eepurl.com/gr6tUT>

For printed copies, visit my Etsy shop:
<https://www.etsy.com/shop/CometFlower>

(c) 2019 Sabina Gartler